

Hi,

I'm Grace Moore and I'm a member of MIT's Undergraduate Energy Club (UGE). I'm writing to potential energy and sustainability enthusiasts to spread the word about the Undergraduate Energy Research Fair; this is the second year UGE of this event specialized for undergraduate students with research projects related to energy or sustainability.

If you're an undergrad pursuing energy-related research, this poster event is your chance to present your research to a faculty panel of judges, without having to compete against grad students (which means you're more likely to win cash prizes)! We are also working on having industry representatives present for networking opportunities.

The whole event, including food and prizes, is sponsored by the MIT Energy Initiative (MITEI), MIT's hub for energy research, education, and outreach here on campus.

When: April 26, 2017, 7pm - 9pm

Who: Any undergraduate student with research or internship experience related to energy or sustainability

Why: Cash prizes for best posters, free food, networking

If you are interested and would like to be updated, please fill out this brief google form: <https://goo.gl/forms/Y9JmeI1UyriKiAi02>

We look forward to sharing more information as the date approaches!

Stay energized,

Grace Moore
Undergraduate Energy Club